Faith Journey

Meeting Jesus

OK, I believe in God, but Who is Jesus?
Faith just isn't a big deal to me, at this time.

Your question

Can I believe here.
the Bible?

Who is this God?

Isn't it OK to just be spiritual?

What about Heaven?

I have a LOT of questions about Christianity, or religion for that matter.

At Atonement, we are here to encourage you on your journey, but it is YOUR journey!

Am I serving others selflessly?

How do I love my "neighbor" more?

How is my life advancing God's Kingdom?

Loving Like Jesus

My relationship with Jesus Christ is the most important relationship in my life. He guides everything I do.

I am willing to risk all, to give away my life, for Jesus Christ.

I desire that Jesus Christ alone rules all aspects of my life.

I want to surrender everything that is important in my life to Jesus Christ

My life's purpose is to know, love and serve God.

Every day, I personally reflect on how the Bible relates to my life.

The Bible is true, and is the ultimate authority on how I can best live my life.

Following Jesus

I get it! I believe Jesus is Lord and Savior!

but, I don't really know him all that well, so I don't really include him in my daily life.

I accept that there is nothing I can do to earn God's favor. Salvation comes from grace alone.

I believe the God of the Bible is the one true God; Father (my creator), Son (my savior), and Holy Spirit (my advocate).

Sometimes, I stop and pray to God for guidance in my life, usually when times are tough.

I reflect on how the Bible relates to my life, but not as often as I'd like.

I am looking for, and finding ways to serve the church.

I know and accept that God is active and present in MY life.

I intentionally find time alone to be still before God.

I stop and pray to God for guidance in my life, in both good times and bad.

More and more, I reflect on how the Bible relates to my life.

I am becoming comfortable having meaningful conversations with others about faith.

My financial giving is biblical: upfront, proportionate and sacrificial.

Keeping Close to Jesus

I feel really close to Jesus Christ, and depend on him daily for guidance.
